A Catalogue, a Map for the Imagination

A catalogue, when you think about it, is much more than a list of books: it is the secret map of a precious territory, an invitation to venture into a world of shared discoveries, always full of surprises. It is a world inhabited by the very best children's and young adult literature, but also by the emotions, passions and imaginations of all those young readers who grow alongside us, forever thirsty for stories.

Just ask Madame Blablà, that extraordinary guide to reading, who has gathered into a fantastical catalogue an assortment of marvellous objects and characters drawn from traditional fairy tales. With remarkable flair, she presents them as unique treasures, complete with their place of origin, suggested uses, recommendations and, of course, instructions and guarantees of quality.

This is a carefully curated network of stories that should never be seen as a closed collection, but rather as a range of possibilities, each one pointing towards the ever-evolving inner world of every child. Because a good book is always a gateway—to language, beauty, humour, imagination and critical thought. It is also a way of creating connections: between children and adults, between schools and libraries, between bookshops and families, between the present moment of reading and the future of a lifelong reader.

This is Madame Blablà's secret: she sees her catalogue as a map of stories where we can trace personalised reading journeys, shared adventures, companionship, exploration and endless surprises—always different for every child. We know that this is also what guides you—booksellers, librarians and, of course, families—every time you choose a book.

We like to think that Combel's catalogue works in much the same way: as a carefully curated collection of little wonders, each with its own origin, its ideal reader and its own promise. Every book has been chosen to fulfil a particular purpose in a bookshop, a library, a classroom or a home: as a gift, as a child's first independent read, as a story to be shared aloud, as a visual discovery or as a gateway into literature. That is why we work with renowned authors and illustrators, creating books in which every aspect—the text, the artwork, the format and the production—is crafted with care. Books to look at, touch, read, give as gifts, recommend, share and treasure, for every stage of childhood, from the very first months of life until children are well on their way to growing up. Just as we have done with every new publishing season for many years.

So here it is: our catalogue, every bit as inspiring as Madame Blablà's—you'll see. The map of stories, however, is, and always will be, yours, and above all, each child's, once these pages become part of their own imaginary world.

After all, they are the reason we do what we do.

Earthlings: Prehistory

Six million years ago the Earth was shaken by a sudden climate change. The lush forests of Africa became savannahs. Primates, who until then lived in the trees, learned to live on the ground and to walk on two legs in order to be able to stand in the undergrowth and see into the distance. They learned to think, to invent, to communicate, to imagine; they became human. Equipped with stone tools and mastering the fire, they set out to travel the world.

Ready to Learn? Neuroeducation is at Stake!

Based on neuroeducation's ultimate literature, children will be able to improve learning processes, consolidate concepts and learn to learn by combining playful exercises with the acquisition of new mental skills.

Every activity is accompanied by the bold illustrations of María Reyes Guijarro, and works on one specific mental skill: attention, reasoning, knowledge of space, language, memory, numerical reasoning, graphomotricity and creative thinking.

Daniel Detective Trilogy

Daniel, the protagonist of this highly illustrated chapter books, takes solving mysteries very seriously. Growing readers will love following along as the boy detective, accompanied by his trusty dog, Tando, collects clues and applies his problem-solving skills to solve his cases: Who has eaten the cheese sandwich? What mystery surrounds the locked box that he has found in the shed of the house?...

Solving the mystery alongside Daniel is half the fun of the detective stories. Jarque gives you enough clues to figure it out! Follow them, grab your notebook and start jotting down notes!

Agus & Monsters

My name is Agus Pianola. You didn't know this, but sooner or later we were bound to be friends. Until recently I was a rather normal kid: I went to school, lost my homework, wolfed down pizza... But the day I met Mr Flat, everything changed.

Ah, of course. You still don't know who Ms Flat is, do you? I'll just tell you that he's a monster and that ever since he moved into my room, the world is not only more fun, but it's also a better place. Better, but with tons of trouble!

The Iliad

The Iliad is an epic poem attributed to Homer that recounts the final year of the Trojan War. After nine long years of fighting, Achilles, the greatest of the Greek heroes, realizes that he has yet to perform any deed worthy of the eternal glory his mother once foretold. This moment marks the beginning of the story.

This modern adaptation preserves the spirit of ancient oral storytelling, when epic tales were sung before attentive crowds. Let us join the circle and listen as the muse begins her song!

The Odyssey

This beautifully illustrated adaptation brings one of the greatest classics of world literature to young readers while preserving the spirit and grandeur of the original story. Accessible and engaging, it follows Ulysses on his epic ten-year journey home to Ithaca after the Trojan War, facing mythical dangers and extraordinary adventures along the way. A timeless masterpiece for a new generation of readers.
